DETECTIVES ON STAND.

In Trial of Charles Cadwell of Chester, Charged With Arson.

Woodstock, June 16.—In Windsor county court, the state rested yesterday afternoon in the trial of Charles Cadwell of Chester for arson and half a dozen witnesses for the defense were heard. The interesting part of the morning's testimony was given by Boston detectives who claimed to have trapped Cadwell into confessing various crimes.

Harry Spaulding of the Wood Margen Detective agency of Boston, said he went to Chester in March of this year, made Cadwell's acquaintance and lived at his house several weeks. He was supposed to be on a hunting trip, told Cadwell he belonged to a gang of crooks and Cadwell said he was the sort of fellow he wanted to meet. Spaulding made arrangements to take Cadwell to Belknap Falls to meet the chief of the gang and in a room at hotel Wyndham they had a talk with J. B. Wood, Jr., who took the part of the chief ringleader.

Cadwell wanted to join the gang and witness said he boasted of various exploits showing his nerve and qualification, said he had shot deer out of season and had burned Goddard barn and 17 head of cattle, this to get even with Goddard upon whose complaint he had been prosecuted for shooting a deer illegally. Cadwell also said he had robbed a saloon some years before and had more recently tried to rob neighbors' houses. Officers who had heard the conversation from a bathroom adjoining, then entered the room and arrested Cadwell.

On cross-examination, the witness said Cadwell had four drinks of whiskey on the way from his home to Belknap Falls. Mr. Wood's testimony followed and was corroborative of Spaulding's story as to the conversation preceding the arrest. J. C. Kinney and H. W. Morgan also corroborated in their testimony. Clarence Bemis said he had seen Cadwell's house and heard him say he'd get even with Goddard.

The state rested and the dozen witnesses were sworn for the defense, several testifying to Cadwell's good reputation. Mrs. E. G. Bemis, his housekeeper, said that on the night of the fire Cadwell was sick. She helped him to bed and was in his room at half hour intervals all night.

St. Albans, June 16.—The 119th convention of the Episcopal diocese of Vermont opened in this city this morning with about a hundred delegates in attendance. Bishop Hall is presiding. He reported that there were 412 confirmations during the past year, which is the largest number in the history of the church in Vermont except in 1894, the first year that Bishop Hall took charge, when there were many waiting to be confirmed. He also reported that two clergymen had been transferred to other dioceses and six had been received by letter dismission, making 51 clergymen although that does not represent all who are engaged in the work of the denomination in Vermont. There are two impending resignations.

Bishop Hall reported the permanent appointment of Rev. David L. Sanford as diocesan missionary.

Announcement was made to-day that $62,240 of the $100,000 endowment necessary before Bishop Hopkins Hall for girls at Rock Point, Burlington, could be reopened, has been raised and that $6,575 more has been pledged. HYDRANT AND MAN

Conspired to Stop Runaway Team on Main Street Last Night.

A hydrant in front of John Cleary's house on North Main street helped to stop the mad career of a horse which was plunging up the street at half past eleven last night without a driver, and Alex. Coutts did the rest. When Coutts got the animal calmed down, it was found that no injury had been done to the beast, but that the wagon was a sorry sight, as was the harness. The horse was taken to Papin's stable. Along about half past one this morning a man, pretty mad, who gave his name as Woodward of Orange, came and claimed the team.

It seems that the horse had been left standing on Railroad street during the late evening and decided to start for home, driven or no driver. The horse must have got there if he hadn't been for the hydrant and Alex. Coutts.

ROUNDED UP
THREE BOYS*For Breaking Into Boat House at Berlin Pond*AND STEALING ARTICLES

Paul Corse, Wilbur Corse and Frank Tomasi, All of Montpelier, Confessed to Entering E. M. Tobin's Property on Monday.

A clever bit of detective work on the part of Deputy Sheriff H. J. Clayton of this city brought three Montpelier youngsters, Paul Corse, Wilbur Corse, and Frank Tomasi, into the toils of the law late yesterday afternoon, charged with larceny. The alleged theft consisted of taking two steel fishing rods, reels, a hunting knife, a case of soda and other articles from the boathouse at Berlin pond owned by E. M. Tobin of this city.

Mr. Tobin has been missing articles for some time, but not until Monday was any clue to the culprits found. On that afternoon Mrs. C. G. Scott, who was a guest at W. M. Holden's cottage, which is near the Tobin cottage, happened to see some boys enter the boathouse and she started to investigate. The boys were in the boathouse when Mrs. Scott arrived on the scene, but were too quick for her and got away. She notified Deputy Sheriff H. J. Clayton of what had occurred and he began a still hunt for the culprits. He found that the three boys had driven a gray horse hitched to a rubber-tired wagon, and a canvas of the Montpelier livery stables disclosed that the three youths above named had hired such a horse from J. Glemie of this city, together with a rubber-tired buggy.

At this outfit equipped with that which the supposed thieves had used, Mr. Clayton went on this information and succeeded in rounding up the youths last evening. They were placed under arrest and at first denied all knowledge of the alleged happenings, but finally under pressure are said to have admitted that they entered the boathouse and took the missing articles.

The boys were brought before Judge Harvey in city court at Montpelier last evening and the case was continued until this morning. Upon their appearance in court this morning, the boys, the oldest of whom is not over 16, confessed to taking the articles. Judge Harvey sentenced them to spend the remainder of their minority in the reform school at Vergennes, but they were allowed their liberty in charge of the probation officer during good behavior.

SKELETON STOLEN.

It Was Used in Montpelier Seminary's
Physiology Class.

A skeleton which was used in the physiology department of Montpelier seminary has disappeared. Query: who's got the skeleton? That's what the faculty wants to know, and if they don't find out within a week they will assess each student in the institution $142 to buy another skeleton. The framework of a human being is considered necessary to the study of the human body, that is, to the best study of the human body; and the faculty think they will need them when school opens again next fall.

So who's got the skeleton? If it should happen to be found in somebody's closet in Montpelier, it might be taken as prima facie evidence that the owner of the closet was the thief who took the skeleton, although it is more than probable that some sportively inclined student of the seminary whisked away the spectre. That seems to be the opinion of the faculty, else they wouldn't have decided to assess the students if the bones were not returned. So a waiting world wants to know what has become of Montpelier seminary's skeleton. Look in your closets, everybody.

BY PLUCKY WORK

J. W. Thorington Brought Down His Runaway Steed.

J. W. Thorington, the expressman, saved his team from a disastrous runaway this noon by pluckily holding onto the horse's nose while the animal plunged out of Jones & McMillan's stable yard onto Main street. The driver hung on like a dog to a bone and finally succeeded in stopping the horse by shutting its wind off in squeezing its nose. He had just taken the feed-bag off the horse's head when it reared up and started to run. Thorington managed to catch hold of the horse's nose as it came down onto its feet again. The seat on the wagon fell off onto the animal's hind feet, frightening it the more.

JACKSON—BEMIS.

Pretty Wedding of Barre Young People at Home of the Bride.

Miss Carrie Alice Bemis, daughter of Mrs. S. B. Bemis, and Henry Hollister Jackson were united in marriage at the home of the bride, 364 North Main street, last evening in one of the prettiest weddings of the year. The ceremony was witnessed by the relatives and near friends, among the latter being nine of the bride's friends in Boston university.

The Rev. Dr. S. N. Jackson of Burlington, uncle of the groom, was the officiating clergyman. The parlor, in which the ceremony was performed, was beautifully decorated with maiden-hair fern and bridal wreath, a bower being skillfully fashioned out of nature's materials and forming a very pretty setting. At 8:30 o'clock the groom, with his cousin, S. Hollister Jackson, accompanying him as best man, entered the parlor, followed by Little Madeline Camp of Barre, the bride's niece, and Master Henry Jackson of Burlington, the groom's nephew, who formed a be-ribboned aisle for the maid of honor, Miss Mary H. Page of Lancaster, N. H., and the bride. Miss Mildred Phelps of this city played the wedding march.

The bridal party took a place beneath the arch of flowers and the ceremony was then performed by the Rev. Dr. Jackson, the single ring service being used. The bride was handsomely dressed in an empire gown of duchess satin, cut on train and trimmed with princess lace. She wore a bridal veil and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was gowned in spider net over pink silk, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas and ferns.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson received congratulations from the party and a collation was served in the dining-room. Here the color scheme was pink, carnations forming the chief decoration. Those who served were Misses Florence Young, Charlotte Norton, Beatrice Callaghan, Katherine Ahern and Helen C. Wilson. The ushers were Hubert Greaves of Medford Mass., and Dr. Joe W. Jackson of this city. During the reception music was furnished by an orchestra.

Among those who attended the wedding were nine members (including the maid of honor) of Sigma Kappa, a sorority at Boston university, of which the bride is a member. They were Miss Helen C. Wilson of Lynn, Mass., Miss Edith Joy of Chelsea, Mass., Miss Charlotte Norton of West Somerville, Mass., Miss Florence Young of Everett, Mass., and the Misses Evelyn and Mildred Phelps, Joanna Parks and Eva Smith of this city. Others from out of town who attended were cousins of the groom, with their wives, Dr. and Mrs. J. Holmes Jackson and Dr. and Mrs. H. Nelson Jackson of Burlington, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. Parkyn Jackson of St. Albans; a brother, Dr. Fred K. Jackson, and wife, and Rev. and Mrs. S. N. Jackson, also of Burlington.

The bride and the groom were classmates in Spaulding high school in the class of 1904, and following their graduation there they attended college, the bride at Boston university and the groom at Yale university, each receiving a degree in 1908. On the completion of their courses in college they returned to Barre, the bride to remain at home and the groom to engage in teaching in Spaulding high school. Mr. Jackson has been engaged to teach in the same school for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, on their return from a wedding trip to Grand Isle, will reside at 20 South Main street, the home of the groom's mother, the widow of the late Dr. J. Henry Jackson. They have many friends who will extend congratulations to them.

M. S. PRIZE DEBATE

Held Last Night and Proved to Be Unusually Interesting.

The annual prize debate at Montpelier seminary last evening proved to be one of the most successful events of the season. It was attended by many townspeople, as well as the students. The question debated upon was: Resolved, that the canteen should be re-established in the United States army. The contest was between C. S. Bemis of West Topsham and O. G. Williams of West Corinth; and negatives, W. H. Gould and O. L. Smithers.

The debate was unusually interesting and the way the speakers commanded the attention of their listeners speaks well for their delivery. Bemis gave in a concise way the reasons why the canteen should be re-established, and showed the qualities of a good debater. Gould and Smithers ably defended the negative side, Gould particularly giving his debate in the real debater's style.

The decision of the judges is withheld until commencement. The judges were W. N. Terrell, Burton E. Bailey and V. A. Doty. Prof. E. A. Cooper of Montpelier seminary acted as chairman.

SOMERVILLE DEPARTS.

Leaves for Europe and Says He Expects to Come Back.

Bob Somerville, the lightweight champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of Europe, who has made Barre his home for several months, sailed to-day from New York with his wife and child for England. Mr. Somerville stated that he received notice Sunday that he had been matched in Oldham, England, for the 25th of this month and was obliged to leave before wrestling the match with Tremblay, the Canadian champion, which was to have come off in a few days. The Somervilles went on the Mauretania.

Since coming to Barre Bob Somerville has met with almost unqualified success and this was eight months in the city, and all but one in other towns. The only match that Somerville has lost since coming to Vermont was at Burlington a few days ago, when he met Fritz Hanson, the welterweight champion.

Somerville, in the communication which he sent from Burlington to a friend in this city, stated that he would let the Barre fans know of his success on the other side of the "pond," and expected to be back in Barre within a few months. Somerville's departure comes as a disappointment to many of the lovers of the art in this city and adjoining towns, who had hoped to see a match between the Scotman and Tremblay, the acknowledged lightweight champion of the world.
